

Call for papers

Special Issue on Social Work in the Time of COVID-19

by

Mary Dallas Allen
Professor of Social Work, PhD
University of Alaska Anchorage
United States
E-mail: mdallen7@alaska.edu

Debbie Gonzalez
Lecturer of Social Work, DSW
Humboldt State University
United States
E-mail: debbie.gonzalez@humboldt.edu

Lennart Sauer
Lecturer of Social Work, PHD
Umeå University
Sweden
E-mail: lennart.sauer@umu.se

DOI: <https://doi.org/10.31265/jcsw.v15.i1.348>

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike 4.0 International License.

Special Issue Editors

- Mary Dallas Allen, PhD, Professor of Social Work, University of Alaska Anchorage, United States
- Debbie Gonzalez, DSW, Lecturer of Social Work, Humboldt State University, United States
- Lennart Sauer, PHD, Lecturer of Social Work, Umeå University, Sweden

The Journal of Comparative Social Work invites you to submit a paper for a special issue on the following topic: Social Work in the Time of COVID-19

This special issue will highlight social work in the time of COVID-19. People across the globe are in different ways affected by the prevalent COVID-19 pandemic. Not least has COVID-19 been a challenge for social work as research, education and practice. This special issue hopes to provide the opportunity to share experiences made through research on social work related to COVID-19 with a focus on comparative studies between different countries, cultures and contexts. The special issue welcomes articles from a broad spectrum of research on social work in time of COVID-19, for example:

- Broad perspectives on the impact of COVID-19 on social work practice
- Social work practice during COVID-19
- Comparative analysis between different countries, cultures, and contexts related to social work and COVID-19
- Social work education / practical education in the time of Covid-19
- Consequences of COVID-19 for different target groups
- Global social work in the time of COVID-19
- Focus on themes that connect to the Arctic, for example rural, Indigenous, international or interprofessional cooperation

Contributions to the special issue should address one or more of the areas indicated above. The focus may be local, national or international. Qualitative, quantitative or mixed methods studies are welcome.

Submission details and deadlines

Authors should submit an abstract of 300 words to the guest editor, and selected abstracts will be invited to submit full articles for double-blind peer review. Articles should meet the standard of original scholarly research and commentary. They will be anonymized and reviewed through a double-blind process of peer review. Articles should have a maximum length of 7,000 words. Read more about the journal and instructions for authors.

Please email abstract submissions to guest editor: Mary Dallas Allen, mdallen7@alaska.edu

- Abstracts by email to guest editor by 30 October 2020
- Online submission of full paper (in English): 31 March 2021